Diving and Hyperbaric Medical Practitioners

1. Commercial divers in Singapore are required to be medically certified “Fit to Dive” within 12 months prior to diving. The medical examination is specifically for diving at work, as described in the Singapore Standard SS511. The doctor conducting the examination should be qualified in diving and hyperbaric medicine.
2. In order to help members meet this requirement, some CDA(S) members have put forward the contacts (below), of the Diving and Hyperbaric Medical Practitioners of whom they are currently consulting.
3. Medical certificates for recreational diving courses, available from most General Practitioners (GPs) are not valid for commercial diving.
4. Disclaimer: The number of Diving and Hyperbaric Medical Practitioners registered in Singapore is large; the list below reflects the members own experience and is obviously not complete. Not being on the list does not imply the doctor is not qualified. CDA(S) does not vet or accredit any doctor or medical practitioner. There are no “CDA(S) recognised” doctors. Members are free to consult with any Diving and Hyperbaric Medical Practitioners, registered in Singapore, for purposes of diving medicals and medical consultation.
